What does it také to be a sculpture renovator?

When the love ~~of one~~ to the pieces of the old masters is bigger than ~~his~~ /one's/ desire to become a creative artist him/herself, one of the occupations ~~he can pursue~~ that can be pursued is that of a renovator. Assuming the plaster and stone are the materials of choice, renovating sculptures might be interesting.

try with passive voice

But it is not only about motivation. A Successful sculpture renovator still needs to be skillful with his hands in order to recover what he believes to be the original look of the piece as closely as possible.

He also needs to be knowledgable. Knowing the historically acurate mixtures used for sculpture casting is as important as ~~chemistry~~ the knowledge ~~about the~~ of the chemical reactions that can occur on the surface and damage the piece of art irreversibly.

/one "chemical" is sufficient

On the other hand impatience can be a disqualifiyng trait as it takes a lot of time and precision to reconstruct the larger sculptures and those who refuse to give the work the time it needs can cause more harm than good.

Also inconsistency might be quite problematic as when one hires renovator he needs to know what to expect from him. And this reference is mostly provided by his past works. If their quality differs notably, one might consider ~~risking~~ being the one to recieve the low of the renovators varying capabilities.

~~#~~/consider what (noun phrase)

So: "consider the risk of being" doesn't work. Perhaps "~~#~~ the low end of ..."

Good idea.

Good adjectives and defense
