Modals of Suggestion and Advice:

Should, Ought to, Had better

Introduction

These three verbs are modal verbs.

- should
- ought to
- had better

Modal verbs are helping/auxiliary verbs that express ideas like ability, advice, and obligation.

Many modal verbs have more than one meaning.

They are always followed by the simple form of a verb. For example:

Amanda should go to the doctor.

This shows that we think it is a good idea for Amanda to visit the doctor.

Let’s learn how to give advice!

English speakers use the modal verbs “should,” “ought to” and “had better” to express that they think something is a good (or a bad) idea.

“Should” is the most common way to give advice.
Look at the following examples:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Affirmative</th>
<th>Negative</th>
<th>Question</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>A: I failed my test.</td>
<td>Young children shouldn’t watch violent TV shows.</td>
<td>I have a problem. Should I call my parents or my friend?</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>B: Really? You should study harder.</td>
<td>('“ought to” is rarely used in the negative form) You ought not to watch TV before finishing your homework.</td>
<td>('“ought to” is not common in question form)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>A: It’s really cold outside.</td>
<td>You had better not forget to pay your tuition. If you do, the university will kick you out!</td>
<td>('“had better” is not usually used in question form)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>B: You ought to wear a warm jacket.</td>
<td>You had better slow down. You are driving too fast!</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

There is a difference in the negative form as well. You can make a contraction only with the verb should, not the other two (see examples below). Also, note the position of the word not in the negative sentence below. The word not goes after should and had better but in the middle of ought to ("ought not to").

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Negative Sentence</th>
<th>Contraction</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>You should not put hot water on a burn.</td>
<td>You shouldn’t put hot water on a burn.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>You ought not to put hot water on a burn.</td>
<td>(There is no contraction.)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>You had better not put hot water on a burn.</td>
<td>(There is no contraction.)</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

These examples have the same basic advice message, but “had better” is a bit stronger. It includes the idea of a warning: something bad will happen if you do not follow my advice. For example:

You had better not forget to pay your tuition. If you forget, the university will kick you out

You had better do your homework. If you do not do your homework, the teacher will give you a low mark.

Note: “You had better...” can be contracted to become “You’d better....” This is correct grammar, and very common in speaking.

Some native speakers say, “You better ...,” but this is incorrect. The “had” is necessary in good grammar.
In the above examples, you can see that the modals are followed by the simple form of a verb in these patterns.

Subject + modal + basic verb + ... ➜ You should study harder.

You should to study harder. ➜ Wrong!

You had better slowing down. ➜ Wrong!

She ought to to drink more water. ➜ Wrong!

Remember that “ought to” is a modal verb and is followed by a simple verb. The “to” is not an infinitive “to.”

Modal + subject + basic verb + ...?? ➜ Should I call my parents or my friend?

WH- (information) questions can also be formed by putting the WH- question word immediately before the modal.

For example:

What should I do about my problem?
Where should we have dinner tonight?
Why should you believe them?
When should they call their boss?

Summary

Should – my opinion

You should finish your homework before you go out.
The builders should have finished by the end of the week.

Should – in wh-questions

Who should I pass the message to? (in wh- questions)
What should I do if I have any problems?

Should – giving advice to myself

I should read the script on the train tomorrow but I know that I’ll be too tired.
I should wash my hair tonight, I haven’t washed it for a week!
Ought to – obligation
You ought to finish your homework before you go out. (it is your obligation)
The builders ought to have finished by the end of the week. (it is their obligation, contract limit)

Had better – urgency, demand, threat, worry
There’s someone moving about downstairs. We had better call the police, quickly. He had better not be late again or he’ll be in trouble.
Damn. It is pouring down. We had better get a taxi or we’ll get soaked.
