

only: the worst + noun
the best + noun

no ~~lefts~~

A Few minutes after midnight a loud noise woke me up. I got up and walked to the balcony to look what it was. It sounded like a kid dragging bag full of cans behind a bicycle, but it was middle of the night.

I could not see a thing. It was a hazy night; smoke from chimneys and smog covered everything and I felt like I was choking. The noise was a great mystery to me because ^{the} government ^{had} enacted a very strict regulation couple days ago due to the corona virus that outlawed going out unless it was very necessary. Why would anyone need to go out at this time? "What could be so necessary right now?" I asked myself. The ~~worse~~ ^{worst} key scenario came to my mind: "Somebody could be stealing," I thought. ^{for an instance}

/ past perfect.
/ before then /

It seemed very unlikely, so I quit thinking about it and went to the bed again. In the morning I ~~talked~~ ^{asked} to my neighbors if they heard the noise too. They actually knew what it was. Their cat got stuck in some wires and ran like crazy. After they told me this, I start laughing and we talked about new regulations. Government ^{the} set time when only people over age 65 were allowed to shop, and also started to enforce the regulations even ^{had} stricter. People could get a fine over 3 million, or even go to jail if they did not obey the rules.

Past perfect.

/ more strictly / adverb

ask s.o. if

Good work.

Good use of vocabulary...

→ consider past perfect: 2 events/actions
in past → 1st act. past perfect.

otherwise pretty good

Thanks!

good