Addiction

I was a normal kid living in China. I played computer games all the time. But one day the government enacted a new law about gaming. I couldn't play games at night anymore!

I loathed China for that. What will I do now? I need to level up my orc mage character! In zeal to level up my character, I started playing the game in the middle of the night. After a few minutes of playing, I got a message that my account ^{was} banned. I lamented my World of Warcraft account, so many hours wasted... Now I couldn't play games even at a day time.

Because of all the stress in real life, I found a new addiction. I started smoking. And that's how I became a chain smoker.

good use of vocab
some comments... see above.
otherwise OK..

Thanks, J-

No comma
before "that" clause

"In zeal to do sth." doesn't work Perhaps: "In my zeal to do..." / you need the possessive here.

you can lament the loss of sth /
an action
so perhaps I lamented my the loss of my account...
