

- 1) The labour market in this field is extremely competitive.
- 2) Oh man, of course he refused you! He's fantastically conceited.
- 3) Well, let's say her views are relatively progressive, but don't expect too much.
- 4) Let's just hope the economy won't have been utterly devastated by the time the quarantine ends.
- 5) As a matter of fact, yes, English classes are totally enjoyable.

OK. But better:
"terribly conceited"

thank you, but maybe better might be: "extremely enjoyable"

- a) alternative
- b) cautious
- c) collapsible
- d) detestable
- e) honourable
- f) laborious = laborious
- g) loathsome
- h) hypocritical
- i) philosophical
- j) repelling
- k) tenacious
- l) theatrical
- m) virtuous
- n) voluntary

haven't seen this used as an adj.
- repellent
- repulsive

in Czech the confusion between "carry" + "wear" is clear ... in Russian (?) / carry /

- 1) Remind me please, since when do you wear a collapsible defibrillator and a set of screwdrivers in your purse?
- 2, 3) Well, the story seems kinda convoluted; despite her tenacious grip and limpet personality of a shrewd careerist, she was given an honourable discharge, but the corresponding documents are missing and her traces effectively lost.
- 4) The alternative approach is kind of a long shot, but it could work.
- 5) I find his writings rather hypocritical and hence repelling.

repulsive (see above)

I've never seen this
used as an adj. ...
you could try "clinging personality";
nice work ... very adventurous ... Thanks!

good +